Claims 3-13 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on January 5, 2006.

In response to applicant's argument that his filing is under rule 371 and therefore should not be restricted since the PCT was not restricted, the examiner notes first of all that the MPEP at section 1850 does not say that the national case cannot be restricted but merely states that the criteria used for restriction must be the criteria set forth in PCT rules 13.1 and 13.2. Applying this criteria, the examiner believes that the applicant has disclosed no "technical relationship" between the "special technical features" of the various embodiments. This is true because the various embodiments involve changes in the orientation and shape of the fuel rail and the positions of the injector mountings relative to the fuel rail's flexible walls. Apparently the applicant has discovered many different combinations of flexible-walled fuel rails that dampen pressure fluctuations within the rail.

The election requirement of the last office action is hereby made final.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3747

Claims 1-2, 14 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Imura (US('273)) in view of Hassinger.

Imura teaches an embodiment, clearly shown in Figure 5D, that shows the long and short walls of applicant's flexible-walled fuel rail. The applicant will note that Claim 1 does not require that the injectors be mounted on the shorter wall or walls.

Hassinger teaches a non-return type fuel rail that is connected to the fuel tank with a conduit that runs between the back of the vehicle and the engine compartment in the front of the vehicle. Anyone of ordinary skill in the art would know to run this line under the floor the vehicle and not inside the vehicle. Safety considerations alone would dictate this location.

It would have been obvious to modify Imura by connecting the tank and the fuel rail as taught by Hassinger because both systems used non-return fuel rails and vehicle fuel tanks are commonly in the rear of the vehicle with the engine of the vehicle in the front of the vehicle.

Claims 15-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
